A ball of fire supended Low o'er a molten sea; Infinite glory blended Lost in eternity.

A vividerim on palling, With penciliags of gold;
A white cloud outward salling
Foam billows, fold on fold. A quivering, rallant ra; ture; Red to ches flaming high; A thousand wave that capture Pale rose tints from the sky. A lesser glory blen ling With blue, more faint'y blue;

A rosy light ascending To pierce all distance through, Commingling tints grow faluter; A dlar tire tarning low Ab, never skill of painter Can mix the colors so, A mel'owed beauty lingers: 1 A curtain, penrly gray,

Is drawn by unseen tingers
A ross the face of day. Gone the resplendent wender; God's glory in sel nwny, We simul the gray sky under, Beside a sea of gray, And sigh because tift's story, Like sunsel's fleeting kiss, Tells tales of translent glory,

At the first trial the jury stood nine to three in layor of the plain-tiff. At the second trial the tourt said: "This is somewhat of a peculiar case," presenting some intricate and interest-ing questions of law. It is quite clear that the case ultimately would go to the Music Tenching.

ed. If the case shall be "nappiny ended," as the selectmen aver by a limit verdict for the town, how far from the four thousand dollars, the limit of damages the plaintiff cart recover on the principal count, will the town have expended. Some of our best knyers consider the case a very close one. The lany was seriously nejmed on an unprojected street while work was beingdon by the town, by the following do as otherwise. Is not the old pulse of a serfunct in close cases by the town, not only less expensive, even if the town may possibly prevail, but more equitable and satisfactory to the people? The sufferer receives the benefit instead of the lawyers, and a resolute of the foun gets some consideration for the great pan and physical as well as mental incapacity he suffers. So it seems to

I have also visited, in person, many places where liquors were reputed to be sold, have induced many person-to quit, or promise to quit, the sale; have prevented others from going into the husiness; have heard and attento d

Some of the worst places in fown have been closed. I am assured that four noted ones in Ward 2 which last year were open and doing mutold unsplief, three are entirely closed and the other is so cared that little frany mosticants are sold. In Ward 14 have seen all suspected parties; there have been no says in this ward which required logal registers as in this ward which required cutions. In Ward 2 there have been numerous presentions and convictions; several in Ward 3, also in Ward 5; note in Ward 1. In all, there have been about 25 prosecutions. Three persons have been sentenced to the Hunse of Correction, and about 8 boor has been paid into the county breasmy in lines and costs. Several cases are on the as a menuace to partless who plend guilty in part and paid one flue, promising to go out of the business if they were left off on others. All of the most novel place;

Temperance at East Weymouth
Rev. Morrill Blamchard spoke on the subject of Temperance to a gathering in the vestry of the Cong'l church, on Friday evening last, under the anspices of the Reform Club. The first part of his discourse was a retrespect of the first century of temperance work since its inception by Dr. Benj, Bush of Philimlelylma in 1785, showing the importect conception of the magnitude of the movement from the growth since, and the present attitude it assumes in the world of today, alirming that there was no real advance or growth till prothe world of today, adirruing that there was no real advance or growth till prohibition of all intoxicants was the watchword. Speaking of the two principles, prohibition license, he said among other good things "God does not lax sin, he forbidsit," Andas would not have been justified in his betrayad of thrist if he had received a mint of money for the act. The high water mark of the century was reached when the Boston Journal of Chemistry in an able education, and to the world that there was no necessity for the use of liquous in either medicine or mechanics, as a substitute for it had been found in all cases. Burn is the Felix of the one and the Agrippa of the other leading political parties, to which the attorice ing political parties, to which the actyo-cates of probibition have looked for help from its baneful influence; failing help from its baneful influence; failing to receive it, an appeal has been made to the Casar of public opinion and in the ultimate settlement of the question we must put right before party, must separate between policy and principle, and remember we are to be indeed in our work by these yet undorn. Letter from Riverside.

RIVERSIDE, Cala., Feb. II, '87.

We're rejoicing in rain and orange picking just now. The packing houses are may yet in full blast, but next month will see larger orders filled. Hands for packing at four cents per box are plentiful, the workers baying to fetch and carry their own boxes, which contains to the size of the fruit. The building house continues, carpenters are more in demand than any other class I think, nuless it's the real tich excursionist, who will please to consider themselves cordially invited, and there is more land to buy in Riverside. Our Weymouth friends are all alive and Mr. E. Loud is a disciplify recovered from his illness to be out again. Mrs. Rosenfeld and daughter are in bown, and are stopping with Mr. Prince Thayer. We mount the departure from our midst of two of our Massachusetts boys,—he of Weymouth particularly; we miss the light of his three handred dollar diamond: I surprised a Weymouthite fishing in the canal, the other morning, after the rain, but he wasn't tishing for clams, but for his hat that had fallen over the bridge just as the surrelient mid had coaxed the rubber from his left foot.

The weather is glorious again, moy the rain is over, and now all had coaxed the rubber from his left foot.

of wonder that the ralways of il United States should be able to main tam order and system, with their con stant interchnings of rolling stock. Take as an chample, a great toffwer have; 5000 freight cars, and it is highly that on any given day, from 14 00 o 2000 of Haited Sinles on seas of different fines of road, and yet so simple and perfeet is the system that with a comparatively small force of clerks the genera cor agent can tell within a few nules of the point where car No. 3651 is to-day and if it is not promptly accompled for em very accurately place the responsibility for its detention.

The general principle, founded upo motives of eranomy, is that cars should be run loaded both ways over the towhenever this is possible. For example if the Wabash were to make rates for the shipment of 200 car leads of mer chandise from Chicago to a point on th Pennsylvanin Compnny's lines, it works endervor so far as practicable to load i upon cars of the Pennsy vanin Company, thus sparing its own rolling stock, no commodning the Pennsylvania Com pany and saving the two and three eighths cents per mile which every road exacts for the use of Its cars by every

The application of this principle son times makes the journey of a car a slow and torinout one. According to rai road othics it is entirely proper to load the car of mother company to any point toward the general line of its traffle, but approper to send it farther away, or re tain it for local service.

Thus n car of the Baston & Main road might be leaded with general merchandise from Portland, Me., to San Francisco. After it is unlowled the question of its return prises. To send it nek light would mean an expense of ne sixty dollars. Hence it may be louded with fruit to Silt Lake City with household furniture to Omaling thence with grain to Kausas City; reloaded there with sand for St. Lonis; take another cargo to Cincinnati, onother to Philadelphia, another to New York, and still another to Boston, All the time that the car is being run on other roads than its own the companie using it pay the mileage named, whether it is full or empty, and this gives them

In the office of every company is kept a set of looks where its cars are entered by numbers, and their movements from day to day entered. FOR THE FARM AND GARDEN. Will Lime Injuce the Sord!

Line will not injure the seed sown of land just previous'y limed. The lime is sufficiently abundant to do this. Forty Lushela per acre is one peck to the equare rod, and when the lime is finely air-slacked and apread on the sail and harrowed in it very soon becomes carbonated or mild, and is then not injurious to mnything. Itut even to dust the seed in the air-slacked lime will not hurt the latter. Lime is thus used with henefit to ilestroy the spores of smulwhich may exist on the seed. If seed qualities, so as to induce farmers to raise corn or onts are steeped in stale urine, or strong salt brine, and then well sprinkled and mixed with dry air-slacked lime, the growth of sunt will be prevented, and there need be no fear of the line broadcast, and masafe to put a
